

Courageous Conversations:

What kind of Saskatchewan do we want now and in the future?

November 15, 2016

	Who	Goals	Quick Details
About	The Cententus Foundation, in partnership with the Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission and the Saskatchewan Educational Leadership Unit, is hosting a forum where decision makers, community partners and interested stakeholders can come together to talk about the role of rights, the need for respect, and citizenship responsibilities in shaping the future of Saskatchewan. What responsibility do you, others, and your organization play in building a stronger, inclusive Saskatchewan?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Participants will listen to students talk about the citizenship issues that matter to them. Participants will engage in cross-sector, solution-based discussions that work towards building a solid foundation for mutual respect in the province. Citizenship Education pedagogy and resources (K-12) will be explored. Constructive action and next steps solutions will be shaped. 	Audience: Community champions, decision-makers, and stakeholders Date: November 15, 2016 Location: TCU Place Convention Centre, Saskatoon Cost: $131.25 per person (Includes GST) More information available at: Websites: www.usask.ca/education/selu or www.concentus.ca/ Email: selu.info@usask.ca or info@concentus.ca

EXPLORE THE BIG QUESTIONS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Listen to acclaimed educator, Dr. Joel Westheimer, and receive a copy of his book “What Kind of Citizen? Educating Our Children for the Common Good.” Interact with provincial and local decision makers. Learn from Saskatchewan students about their hopes and challenges. Explore Cententus Citizenship Education pedagogy and resources to understand how Saskatchewan youth learn about citizenship. Talk with stakeholders to learn how citizenship challenges and opportunities impact their work. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> What kind of Saskatchewan do we want now and in the future? How do we create that future for the next generation of citizens? What is keeping us from creating the Saskatchewan we want? What can you, as an agent of change and citizen of Saskatchewan, commit to doing? 	As Canadians, and as global citizens, we need to act on the responsibilities that come with our citizenship. We need to learn about the issues that matter, and we need to start the courageous conversations that will have an impact in our schools, workplaces, and in our communities. This is everyone's challenge. David M. Arnot Chief Commissioner, Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission

Meet Dr. Joel Westheimer, University Research Chair in Democracy and Education at the University of Ottawa, and author of “What Kind of Citizen? Educating Our Children for the Common Good.”
